

MAN SEEKING JEROME'S LIFE IS SENTENCED

Jacob Meyer, Alias "Frenchy," Is Sent to Workhouse for Six Months.

ASSERTS HE IS PERSECUTED.

Figured as Witness at Trial of Police Captain Herlihy in Red Light Cases.

Jacob Meyer, alias Frenchy, a well-known east side character, who was a witness against Police Captain Herlihy in the Red Light cases, and who has lately been a stool-pigeon for the District Attorney's office, entered the Criminal Courts Building to-day and declared that he was going to kill Mr. Jerome.

Little attention was paid to Meyer at first, but when he began to show signs of violence the watchman on the ground floor put him out and warned the elevator men not to let him upstairs. District Attorney Jerome was not in the building at the time, but it was thought best not to let Meyer get near his office, as the man is a desperate character.

A half hour after Meyer's ejection from the building he was found on the top floor near Chief Clerk Henneberry's office. This is just over the office of Mr. Jerome. Meyer was walking around on his hands and knees and vowing that he would kill Jerome on sight.

Fights Policeman.
A policeman tackled Meyer, and the man suddenly leaped up and began a vicious fight. The policeman and Meyer once got so near the low rail that it was feared they would go over. Assistance came, however, and Meyer was finally subdued.

The man was taken downstairs to the prison pen attached to the police court. There he vowed that he would have killed Jerome if he had got at him. He could give no explanation of why he wanted to kill the District Attorney, and was clearly demented. He was locked up. No weapons of any kind were found on the man, but as he is a strong fellow, with a very evil reputation, the incident caused a good deal of excitement around the building.

Prisoner Morphine Fiend.
Later Meyer was arraigned before Magistrate Moss by Policeman McCarty. The policeman said he had searched Meyer and had found nothing more formidable than a bottle of morphine tablets and a hypodermic syringe. "What in the world do you want to kill Mr. Jerome for?" asked the Magistrate.

"I don't know," said Meyer. "I've been a morphine fiend for ten years and sometimes I get out of my head. I've been persecuted ever since I was a witness against Capt. Herlihy, but if you give me a chance I will behave myself now."

The Magistrate told Meyer his condition was such as to make him a public menace and sent him to the workhouse for six months.

Chicago Broker Wins Suit for Claim in Wheat Deal Attempt of 7 Years Ago.

"Joe" Leiter must pay $69,767 to William J. Zeller, his Chicago broker, for trying to corner the wheat market of the world in 1899, according to the verdict of the jury rendered to-day before Justice Greenbaum, in the Supreme Court.

The complaint set up that Leiter and the brokers settled their accounts in December, 1898, and Leiter gave his note for $2,021 and balance due, payable in three years, with 3 per cent. interest. He let the note go to protest, and in his own defense testified that he had employed Allen, Greer & Zeller to buy up all the wheat in sight.

Leiter said the brokers of the brokers were not correct and he disputed their account, asserting that he not only owed nothing, but that the brokers owed him.

Justice Greenbaum directed the jury to find for Zeller.

TITLED WOMAN AND MAN REPORT SAYS SHE WILL WED.

Lady Hartopp.

LADY HARTOPP CUSTARD PIE TO WED AGAIN WAS ALL SOLD

Sails for Ceylon and, It is Said,
Will Be Second Wife of Earl Cowley.

LONDON, Oct. 18.—As a sequel to the sensational Hartopp divorce case, which culminated last April in a decree nisi, it is now reported that Lady Hartopp has sailed for Colombo, Ceylon, where she will marry Earl Cowley, the co-respondent in the case.

Sir Charles Hartopp first brought a suit against his wife in 1902, but a verdict of not proven was returned. In 1905 he filed a new petition and, Lady Hartopp de clining to defend, the divorce was granted.

She is the eldest daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Henry Wilson, of Waterbury, Yorkshire, and a connection of the Wilsons of Cranby Croft. The Wilson family are noted for their great beauty as well as for their prominence in famous law cases.

Earl Cowley, who is a grandnephew of the great Duke of Wellington, is in his fortieth year, and at present holds a Government appointment in Ceylon. He served through the late Boer war in South Africa. Eight years ago he was divorced from his wife, Lady Violet Neville, daughter of the late Marquis of Abergheny.

Something perfectly awful has happened in Nordland!

This is what Mr. Lew Fields, who stepped out of his diaphanous enough to express a very terse opinion, said about the trouble:

"Miss Ring had left the company suddenly. In fact she did not let me know she was going to leave until 7 o'clock. Just before the performance. Then she telephoned me that unless I apologized to her for a fancied insult she would not play her part. I told her I had nothing to apologize for, and, unfortunately, called Miss Pauline Frederick, and from that time I've rehearsed her in the part."

Just a Little Fling.
To show Miss Ring's pleasant disposition, she sent around her maid just before the curtain went up and took her Nordland costumes away. Fortunately we had others, so she did not succeed in spoiling the performance.

What did she take offense at? Well, in the burlesque during the scene where I am giving her a music lesson she insisted on giving. In one place when the point of the lines consists of playing distinctly in the treble and then in the bass she dragged her hands along the keys and insisted on singing.

"I never used language to her that would insult her. I only told her plainly that she could not sing any one, and that no matter if she had been a star, as she liked to retort, she could not out up any canyans here. The incident is closed, for Miss Frederick made a big hit in the part, and Miss Lawrence's reputation as a comedienne goes without saying, so we are not inconvenienced in the least."

Miss Ring's Own Version
Now read what Miss Blanche Ring has to say. Miss Ring is indignant—very. She admitted it at her apartment in the Hotel Cumberland to-day. She looked indignant, too, as she swept

EARL COWLEY.

HE OPENED 45 WINE BOTTLES, WIFE CHARGES

But Jacob Blum, of Veiling
Firm, Denies Allegations in Divorce Suit.

The birthday slippers from Sophie to Jacob may not have been the crux on which this couple broke, but Sophie Blum mentions them in her application through ex-Gov. Black's firm for $40 weekly alimony, and counsel fee in her suit for a separation. Jacob Blum, of Blum & Blum, dealers in veillings, at No. 49 Broadway, tells all about the slippers, received on his birthday, Aug. 22, 1905, the day before his wife locked him out, and the day she named as that of his abandonment of her and little Bernie and Bennie. In the slippers, Jacob says, were notes written in his wife's fair hand, but signed "Bertha" and "Bernie."

The notes read like this: Congratulations—Dear Papa: To-day being your birthday, I congratulate you and wish you a long and happy life and pray the Lord to spare you to us for a good many years to come, and be good to my dear mother, my little sister and myself. Your son, BENNY. Bennie added that his mamma joined in his good wishes.

They lived at No. 104 Macy place, Brooklyn, and Henry W. Unger, opposing the application for alimony. A new landlord had bought the house and elected to discontinue their lease. Mr. Blum proposed to fight and engaged a lawyer to meet him and his wife at the store next day.

Note from Mrs. Blum.
Mrs. Blum came over, found Mr. Blum at a busy luncheon restaurant and abused him roundly with no apparent provocation. She left a note on his desk, which read:

"I don't want to see you or your lawyer. You deceive me on every side. Now I am going to your dry goods store where you opened for your father. Now you want Louise's money and sign for your people. Not on your life. You can do with your father and your lawyer as you please. I am done with you. I find you everything."

That night, according to Blum's affidavit, she locked him out but finally, after much entreaty, let him in. After he had gone to bed, he says, she came in and took a revolver from her room, slipped it into his pocket, and then she went out and locked the door. The next day she sent her furniture to a storage house and went with Bernie and Bennie to her sister in New Haven.

The Wife's Charges.
Mrs. Blum says her husband is too devoted to his parents, brothers and sisters, loving them more than his wife and children. She says he is making $10,000 a year; that he borrowed $5,000 from her to buy his third interest in the partnership and that their troubles dated from one day when he wanted another loan to buy out the remaining partners. The wife says Jacob became addicted to drink and that he had to go to a sanitarium after boasting to her that he had opened forty-five bottles of wine for his guests.

Jacob says he is not a hard drinker, and as for the sanitarium story he went for treatment for an abscess in the throat. After his wife had returned to Dr. M. L. Lee's remark that he should remain at home and have quiet and good care, "I can't wait on him; let him starve."

Justice Stover reserved decision.

STRIKE-BREAKER DID NOT GET A LICENSE.

Commissioner Keating Granted No City Permit to Farley During "L" and Subway Trouble.

Strike-breaker Farley, who took an active part in causing the Interborough strike, did not get a license as an employment agent from Commissioner of Licenses Keating. The office he opened on Day street was not run with any sort of permit from Mr. Keating.

There was an impression that Farley fought the strike with the assistance of a license issued by Mr. Keating, and an Evening World reporter was so misinformed yesterday.

The correction is made in fairness to Mr. Keating.

FIREMEN OF WHITE STAR LINE BEATEN

Friends of Discharged Men Attack the Italians Who Took Their Places.

There have been nightly rows in the vicinity of the White Star line pier, Nos. 48 and 49 North River, since that steamship company decided to discharge the English-speaking crews upon the ships entering the Mediterranean and employ only Italians as seamen and firemen. The men who have lost their positions resent the change and vent their wrath upon the Italians.

The steamship Republic, which sails for the Mediterranean to-morrow, and the Baltic, which sailed for Liverpool to-day, were at the dock last night. Passengers were going aboard the Baltic and Detectives Moody and Lessen were there on the lookout for pickpockets, when their attention was called to a commotion just outside of the dock.

They ran out and found that several idle firemen had attacked four Italian firemen who had ventured out for a walk. The detectives dispersed the crowd by a liberal use of their clubs, and then turned their attention to the Italian firemen, who were found to be armed with stones and stones.

When asked why the Italians were employed as firemen and seamen in preference to the old hands the White Star people would only say that the Italians were more satisfactory.

MAD MULLAH ON THE FIELD BREATHES WAR

Italian Ships Sent to Somaliland to Protect Threatened
Colonists There.

ROME, Oct. 18.—The "Mad Mullah" is again on the warpath, according to advices from Aden. He is said to have taken the field in Somali-land and is threatening Italian colonists.

It was only last December that the "Mad Mullah's" last campaign closed. To bring an end to the vexatious desert war the British and Italian Governments entered into a treaty with him, granting him a settled sphere in Somali-land and giving rights to a British and Italian territory, on condition that he would maintain peace with the two governments.

He placed himself under Italian protection. Italian warships have been ordered to the coast of Somali-land.

YOUNG OLD MEN UNITE TO FIGHT OSLER'S IDEA

Will Ask Congress to Check
Rules Preventing Those Over
45 Earning a Living.

CHICAGO, Oct. 18.—With the object of removing the ban upon wage-workers by the "rule" and "unusual age limit," and assisting them in securing employment, an Anti-Age Limit League has been organized in Chicago. Efforts will be made to remove the age-barriers by Congressional enactment.

The league has opened offices in the Republic Building. It is described as an association of veterans of the Civil and Spanish-American wars and other citizens who have reached the age limit of forty-five years.

James F. Downey is president and Benjamin Groux, who was a captain of sharpshooters during the Civil War and a member of the old Chicago Light Guard, is the secretary and treasurer. A circular describing the objects of the league says:

"The doors of the league are open to all honest and industrious and reputable men, especially those who have passed the proscribed age limit of forty-five years. It will lead the fight against age ostracism by Congressional enactment, and seek the creation of a wholesome sentiment among such employers who have not altogether forgotten that true happiness is found most surely in honest labor."

The league will place particularly before the Government "the persistent ostracism of veterans of the civil war, in that they are refused the pursuit of their inalienable right to labor in all the departments of the National Government, in accordance with their mental and physical equipment irrespective of age."

CLOVER CLUB FOR GIRLS.
Luncheon Organization for the Shopping District Will Admit No Men.

The Clover Club, not the one in Philadelphia that was famous for years for its tactics with invited guests, but a new luncheon club for working girls and women, will open to-day at No. 45 West Twenty-third street.

The new club is built along the lines of a sister organization downtown, where the majority of the members are stenographers.

The girls employed in the shopping district are the ones to be benefited. The dues are 25 cents a month. The member waits on herself and pays her check, which each day costs the club not a member five cents.

There is a parlor, and, while no men are admitted to the club proper, there is a recreation-room where the escort may wait until the member of the Clover Club has eaten her luncheon.
